Social Justice For All

It is our client's brief that upon your several breaches of their rights, they approached an Ikeja High Court in Suit No.: ID/9039MFHR/19 to challenge your interference in their affairs. The Honourable Court, among others, restrained you and your agents from collecting any levy from our client as there is no legal basis for such.

Despite the above final order made by a competent court, you continue to meddle in the internal affairs of our client by instigating thugs and contacting our client's partners to obtain money from them thereby denying our client its revenue. You have also continued to use thugs to disrupt lawful gatherings of the various market associations without any justification.

You may wish to know that Mrs Abisola Azeez parading as the Iyaloja of Computer Village on your sanction has no shop or stake in the Village. Meanwhile, our client is not averse to a shop owner or trader obtaining the membership form if they are interested in joining the association as its membership is open to any interested person in our client's line of business. However, such individuals must obtain the membership form and properly be enrolled. It is noteworthy that only the authorized members or members of the executive have the locus to interfere in our client's affairs.

Our client is not unaware that you have contacted our client's several partners to make their commitments to you. We have instructions to warn against any further demand or communication to our client's partners including but not limited to Oppo, Proview, Samsung, Big and Bold et al because the commodity association of the Women and Men Market Association which is the basis of your appointment by the Lagos State Government has no membership in Computer Village.

A careful perusal of the Lagos State Market Advisory Council Law which you derive your power from, particularly under Section 8 does not include taking levies or interfering in the internal affairs of any market as the Council only plays an advisory role to the executive Governor of Lagos State and no more. Assuming without conceding that your office has the power to collect levies, Computer Village is not one of the markets contemplated under the law under reference.

It is imperative to obey and act in line with the judgment of the High Court of Lagos State delivered on the 8th day of December 2020 wherein you and your agents were perpetually restrained from imposing and collecting levies under any guise from the members of our client in the Computer Village Market.

THEREFORE, TAKE NOTICE that should you again continue on this subject matter, our client will pursue every legal and equitable remedy available to it against you and also claim the cost thereof from you.

Whilst we hope that the salient issues raised in this letter will be properly considered, please accept our warmest regards.

Yours sincerely,

TAIWO E. OLAWANLE, LP.

ADEBAYO A. ONIYELU, LP.
